

SCANDINAVIAN STUDIES

Fall 2020 Volume 92 Number 3

Knausgård beyond Autofiction

Guest edited by

Claus Elholm Andersen and Dean Krouk

Introduction Claus Elholm Andersen and Dean Krouk 269

Articles

Confession, Shame, and Ethics
in Coetzee and Knausgård Peter Sjølyst-Jackson 274

Guys and Dolls: Gender, Scale, and the Book in Elena Ferrante's Neapolitan Novels and Karl Ove Knausgård's Min kamp Inge van de Ven 296

Growing Up: Knausgård on Proust,
Boyishness, and (Straight) Time Olivia Noble Gunn 325

The Aesthetics of Epiphany in Karl Ove Knausgård's Min kamp Gísli Magnússon 348

"A love relationship is not a place for refuge, it is the place to be":
The Theme of Love in Karl Ove
Knausgård's Min kamp Christian Refsum 369

The Fear of "das Volk": Karl Ove
Knausgård's Reactions to Terrorism Ingvild Folkvord 390